DOUBLE TRACEDY IN WILKES.

A tragedy occurred near Lovelace, Wilkes county, last Friday, according to seemingly reliable reports. John Coleman shot and instartly killed his sister-in-law, Mrs. Dora Chambers, and then placed the gun to his head and fired, killing himself. Mrs Chamers, whose husband, James Chambers, left here some time ago, is reported to have been living with Coleman. Some time since Coleman's wife died and there are rumors of foul play in connection with her death. It is thought that Mrs Chambers had threatened to tell all she knew of the close to the town. Part of the Boer matter and that this caused Coleman to kill her and then himself. It is said that Mrs. Chambers was standing in Coleman's yard when he stepped out

MISCELLANEOUS OBSERVATIONS OF THE TRANSVAAL WAR.

The following incidents are reported of the Transvaal war:

While a Roer soldier was reading his Bible on the battlefield a British bullet struck the Bible in the center causing the soldier to lose the place where he was reading.

In General White's report of the Ladysmith fight occurs the following: "The enemy treated our wounded with humanity. General Joubert at once dispatching a letter to me offering a safe conduct to doctors and ambu lances to remove the wounded."

From all accounts these farmer-sol diers are not brutes-they are brave, pious, humane and Christian. And while these virtues will not save them from the fury of the English when the full quota of the queen's troops shall have reported for duty in South Africa, there are thousands of people who are sympathizing with them deeply in their manly struggle for independence and who wish that their efforts toward a government of their own may not be attended with failure.

A foreign dispatch states that the much-talked-of intervention in the Transvaal by European powers wil not take on tangible shape unless England shall, after defeating the Boers, attempt the subjuga ion of the Transvaal and the Orange Free state of be ple s le re file r corto victory of the Bo-rs three miles norththe fine strategy of Gen Joubert Bu the British attribute their calamity t a different source. They lay all the blame on the terrified mules, who ran off with the gun equipment. Every thing is fair in battle, and if the cunning Dutchmen rolled boulders from the hill with the result stated in the forced march through the silence and unexpectancy of the night, inflicting defeat upon the enemy.

Boer stock has risen twenty points since the surprise of Ladysmith.

Notes of

The dark, lowering clouds and the murky atmosphere, the gloom and the slush, the mud and the wind, and all the dismal accompaniment of the storm of a couple of days since have fled at the radiant approach o' Apollo, and the god of light reigns in all his refulgent glory today.

Tuesday I leaned against a tel phone pole and the north wind howled through my coat-tails; the wind fell in spiteful sheets, and the black mud of the streets held high carnival and rode into the stores and offices on the heels of the traveler. I thought then, to use an inelegant phrase but the most expressive one that occurs to me at present, "This is tough." But how symbolic of life! Though storm and darkness and trouble and sorrow may occur today, in the divine order of things here below, they will give way to the brightness and the happiness and the sunshine of tomorrow. And there arose a comfort to me when I reflected that the gloom and blackness and trouble and sorrow of the pass had fled away, and that tomorrow the sun would shine more brightly and our bear's would grow lighter and gladder

by reason of having gone through the trying experience.

We all believe-or profess to believe that the world is growing better as the days go flitting by. Yet there is an abundance of contrary evidence floating around. Let's launch this proposion: Let the most gifted and earnest preacher that the world's array of grand preachers can produce-a man who dazzles and captures the soul by his burning eloqeunce-whose words o immortal truth, clothed in the most beautiful, rythmic English cannot pos sibly fail to convince the reason and sink deep into the heart; -besides this let the man be of the most pleasing personality and irresistible magnetism and a power to force his hearer to come up to the peace and happiness of man heart can surely find surcease to its gnawing so rows;-let such a man be engaged to address the people on hisublimest text in the finest and most spacious and torium that rests on the American oil. Let his engagement be dvertised from Portland to San Francisco. But in order to avoid the onsequent terrible push and rush for seals, let a scale of prices for pews be fixed ra ging from $5 to $35. Let all this be done, and do you suppose the udience or the congregation would qual in any measure the size of the throng that will gather tomorrow night at the Coney Island Sporting lub to watch in frenzied pleasure one ow-browed, bull-necked slugger beat rices for seats from $5 to $35-and his audience not composed of sportng men alone, but interspersed with he pick of the metropolis?

It was about 12 yesterday, and I had started to the place where the inner man is satisfied. I tarried a moment on a corner reading a fancy advertiseent, when my ear was arrested by a casual conversation carried on by two policemen and a preacher. They were discussing the recent burglary at the Carolina Shoe Company's store. The preacher remarked significantly that he supposed those boys who committed the theft "had been reading dime novels " The first policeman (who was not acquainted with the minister) responded: "Yes, anybody who will read them d-n things, is liable to do anything." The second policeman nudged his brother officer in the side and said in an undertone: "You don't Railway, arrived here today in his know who you are talking to; that man's a preacher." Replied the first policeman: "Well, he cussed too: he said them boys had been reading d-n novels The divine had moved on.

They knelt es. placed the things on the table, knelt again and retired. came a lady in waiting, followed by a second. The first lady, dressed in white after kneeling three times, approached the table and solemnly rubbed the plates with the salt. Then entered 24 yeomen of the guard clad in scarlet. and each carrying a dish of gold. These dishes were placed upon the table while the lady taster gave to each of the guards a taste from the dish he had brought in, for fear of possible poison. These guards were selected from the tallest and stoutest men in all Eng land. At the close of this ceremony number of unmarried ladies appeared and with great solemnity lifted the various dishes and carried them to the queen in her private apartments. The New York "swagger" set received a breezy sensation recently when one of the choicest young heiresses on the Avenue married an American, who earns his own living; while of the same date went sailing homeward a distinguished little princeling whose yard-long title rumor said had been placed entirely at her disposal. "Bless me" exclaimed her self-made father

facetiously, "If this sort of thing keeps on we'll all be Americanized!"
There is something about the air of this country which inclines our women to act independently. A girl may try to wrap up her womanly instincts beneath a cloak of fashionable vanity, but the little love gods find out the weak spots in her armor and pelt her unmercifully. If she is a true American the chances are after all that nine times in ten she will marry the man she cares for. The vast majority of our young women seek no greater blessing than to be well-loved wives of stronghearted men; and mothers of healthy, happy children.

The natural burdens of wifehood and motherhood have been amazingly lightened in the some and the strength of the some and the strength of the strength of the some and the strength of the st motherhood have been amazingly lightened in the last thirty years. Advanced science has found a way to overcome the physical weakness of women and make them strong and capable of performing their wifely and motherly duties. THE MODERN WOMAN'S OPPORTUNITY.

At the present day there is no need for any woman in this country to be weighed down and overburdened with physical weakness or disease. A woman suffering from any delicate ailment peculiar to her sex, no matter what the circumstances may be, may obtain such eminent professional advice and assistance as a queen could hardly command a generation ago.
